Project Art Works

It's all about consent

During the Explorers Project we want to show lots of people the amazing work you will make with us.

We want to make sure that you are in control and make choices.

In our art workshops we take lots of photographs and make films.

We use these to show people what you do when you are here.

Sometimes we use your art in exhibitions and installations

We would like to show your artwork with photographs and films on our websites.

And social media sites

In our catalogues and publications

John Croft

Although nearly 50, John is enthusiastic about all things "pop". He takes much of his inspiration from 70's and 80's music and television stars, "seeing" them through a palette of bright colours. Originally working with Paper, he went to work when he made film, a large and abstract painting inspired by an original vinyl LP sleeve. He has continued to develop his painting and artistic language through numerous studies.

As an artist, however, John often brings CDs in to the studio, here to share his passion for particular songs with the rest of the group. He is a sensitive and positive person and gets on particularly well with the project manager, Tanya who he calls "Dore".

John takes well known images and photographs of pop and film characters and translates them into highly personalised readings of each character. The faces he paints often focus a powerful gaze on the viewer such as in his study, The George and David Davis/Clay Studier - in this painting the face is really lit as if under a stage light but radiates benevolence and an air of serene benevolence.

John says of his painting:
"I like George and David. They wonder what and what. I liked the red. I found it. I liked making it."

"That one, Batman. I like the mask. His name is Bruce Wayne. I liked the hat. I love it."
